ADAIR COUNTY BUSINESS BUZZ

The Entrepreneur Spirit

NWYC: Harnassing The Power Of The Pen

Commentary by John Bankel

Where would America be without the "Entrepreneur Spirit," that spirit which is born of FREEDOM and borne by the hard-working, innovative men and women who ventured forth with their ideas for the benefit of us all?

Imagine what it would be like without the "Entrepreneur Spirit"? In today's column we get to visit with Kat Foster, Regional Manager for National Write Your Congressman (NWYC) and an entrepreneur in her own right.

NWYC Regional Manager, Kat Foster

Not enough people know about NWYC. This organization was started by David Adamson, who in 1958 was a lobbyist for the National Chamber of Commerce. His idea was to build a network of small business owners and provide them direct access to their elected State and Federal officials. Thus, began National Write Your Congressman and their mission to encourage responsible Americans to use their influence in government to preserve the freedoms set forth by our Founding Fathers. Today, NWYC, based in Richardson Tx., is run by 3d generation Chris Adamson and is going stronger than ever. With the advent of modern communication technology, the power of the pen is harnessed en masse and has proven to be extremely effective in numerous instances. For example, it was because of the deluge of emails from NWYC members that the Environmental Protection Agency (EPA) backtracked on their proposed mandate to "seize" money from small businesses that it found had not paid EPA fines. An email alert went out to all NWYC members during the statutory 30-day public comment period. Instantaneously, by the power of the electronic transmission pen, the EPA found itself awash in objection to what was perceived as an unconstitutional overreach by an agency filled with un-elected bureaucrats. The result? The mandate was rescinded. Such is the power of the citizen's voice when multiplied and finds its target. Kat Foster, who joined NWYC around 2 years ago, is making a difference in getting the word out as a Regional Manager while covering a large territory which includes Adair County. Kat is well suited for her new work. She was raised in Texas where, during her high school years, she excelled in Cheer, gymnastics, and springboard diving. The competitive spirit blossomed early in her life. It is still in full bloom today. After finishing college with a degree in fashion merchandizing and marketing from SW Texas State University, she briefly ran a modeling agency. From there, she decided to go back to school and pursue a degree as an RN. It was while studying in this field that she got an opportunity to work for a major medical device company in sales and marketing. Kat enjoyed a successful career with this company. With a consistent interest in politics and the state of our nation after the Obama years, she found herself immersed in the Donald Trump campaign. That experience honed her passion for what she does today. When NWYC came calling through LinkedIn, she enthusiastically accepted the call. Kat is fully convinced that NWYC provides the platform that all citizens need for their voices to be heard in a government that is predicated on "of the people, for the people and by the people." NWYC has the tools necessary for restoring America's government to its original intent. Her dedication to her work is unparalleled. Because of Kat Foster's efforts, more and more people will learn about NWYC and, as members, be able to harness the power of the pen to make a difference. There is no time to waste. For more information, please see the NWYC ad on the Ad Page of this paper.

They Risked It All/It's the Truth MEMORIES OF FARM AND FAMILY

Number 33

By Donna Boecher

My mother wanted to write. Her diary of 1936 spoke of her dreams. In the 1930's writing was a dream which the Great Depression delayed. Writing didn't pay for food and housing. Instead, she married and had "the million-dollar family" - a boy and a girl and became the loving "grammar Nazi" in our home while writing to friends and family - no Whats Ap, internet, or email then. What did I learn from her? To love "WORDS." I read, I listened to the beauty of well-turned phrases, and to the rhythm of a favorite writer's words. "Can't hardly" a "double negative" was not to be spoken by college graduates, but as a possible colloquial phrase said by west Texas cowboys. I understood. I'm sure she read Kipling at Stilwell High School.

Rudyard might have inspired her to write the eulogy in 1929 about a classmate which was printed in the Democrat Journal. Kipling was alive at the time. I hope she got to read Kim and to see the 1950 movie "Kim" filmed in India with Erroll Flynn and Dean Stockwell. As they say, "if wishes were horses, beggars would ride." Mother rode well.

Dear John,

My dad told me he has seen a Sasquatch. I told him that I do not believe in Bigfoot, so he told me to visit with my aunt. I called her and she told me that she had seen the sasquatch too. I'm leery of their stories because they also told me how Santa visits me at Christmas. I called my grandmother and she said, "I lived with Bigfoot." I knew she was talking about grandpa, but she wouldn't admit that Bigfoot is not real. I asked my coach he said, "I saw Sasquatch at Ten Killer." I'm beginning to think this is a conspiracy. Do you believe in "Bigfoot?"

The Tooth Fairy

Dear Tooth Fairy...one man's fantasy can be another's reality. Be that as it may, the Bigfoot story got its start somewhere, at some time. It is quite possible that someone saw something in the twilight of the forest, with its shimmering shadows that formed an image of gargantuan proportions. The person that saw it may or may not have been sober? In any event, real or not, it was a frightening visage that could make a great storyteller shine. So, from that moment on, Bigfoot became real. Many have jumped on the story and in good old American fashion crafted a money maker. The story keeps on growing and Bigfoot keeps looming larger and larger along with the promoters' bank accounts. Dear John also had believed in the Tooth Fairy at one time. Now Dear John is waiting for the Tooth Fairy to bring back those teeth!

Sincerely,

Dear John

"My tribe, your tribe and how to defend them."

Letter to the Cherokees

How should one address such a large group of society? I guess the easiest way to address the masses is to address you individually. To address you individually, it is best to first address what we are as a tribal Cherokee. We know that historically Cherokees have identified themselves as tribal people who commonly spoke the same language, had similar looks and practiced the same order of laws. These ancestral laws stemmed from our ceremonial grounds. These ceremonial laws covered a range of things, from how we were to go to wars to handling social conflicts within our tribal society. These ceremonial actions were done out of a desired relationship with God. You see, to be able to call ourselves a tribe, a tribe is historically a group of families that follow and worship the same God. Over the course of the past 3 1/2 years, as a Cherokee Indian, I have done an intensive soul searching for God. The reason why I would take such a quest, goes to my pursuit to bring justice, accountability, and order to our Cherokee Nation Government while having served as a legislator in our tribe. After my first year on the council, I struggled to find my footing on how to fight what many call a "Machine" that runs our tribe. I personally lean towards calling it a "Beast" as the word beast in Greek is thérion, literally translated to "wild beast, something that cannot be tamed." Many times, in the New Testament of the Bible, thérion is used to describe what men will come to worship, as we see mentioned in the book of Revelation 13:4... "And they worshiped the dragon which gave power unto the beast: and they worshiped the beast, saying, Who is like unto the beast? Who is able to make war with him?" Now who can make war with this beast? After all, we watched the events unfold in the 2019 Chief's election and the 2021 council races where the beast would slay anyone who tried to make war with him. So how could I gain my footing and try to remove the beast that so many have come to fear and/or worship. I have witnessed many good men turn to wrong doings from the pressures of what the beast could offer or could threaten them. The most recent example of this was a Deputy Chief candidate pulling out of the race out of fear from the beast's threats. So, after the struggles on the council and then watching the events of how they treated Bobby Slover and David Comingdeer during the 2021 council races, I was very distraught, and anger had set in. If we really are a tribe, how has my tribe, with which I am to identify, allowed such a beast to reign as its supreme authority? How could one really make war with this beast? My answer came in what my wife likes to say that I have been in a very intense spiritual battle for the better part of 2 years. I started looking into and reading about our tribal ceremonial ground. I spoke to some of the ground Chiefs and ground goers. They recounted old stories of how it came to be, who we are, and the continual searching by many on who they are to be as an Indian. I have spent many evenings speaking with a dear friend who grew up in the grounds, and has a great extensive history on our grounds especially in the time frame where our people used to have stomp dances outside of the church in the mid-1800s. Isn't that interesting? It was to me. That stomp dances were being held outside of the church, and many of the pastors at that time were also leading the songs at the ceremony grounds. As we fellowshiped, I was learning much more than I had intended when I set out on this journey on my quest of how one could make war with this beast. Continually, I would learn more about who we are, then go back to my Bible and study more about the historic biblical tribes. Many scholars in the past have tried to label some Cherokees as being descendants of a lost tribe of Israel. I will not deny that that part of my journey was trying to prove the theory that we are. From what tribe we stem does not matter in God's eyes. You see, our story is still a story about who God is. If it isn't, then are we saying that we are better than God? Of course not; in fact our oral traditions and stories are all about God. As I gain my first realization that there is only one who could make war with the beast and that is the one true God. Studying more about the Bible and our tribe, I started to realize that our tribe worships money and the theory of protecting its "culture" more than God. Ironically, in the debate for Chief, I led with statements about putting God in his rightful place. Some mocked me that I would use God to save our culture as though the two were somehow unrelated. Culture has everything to do with God! Let's quickly look at that definition. Culture is similar behaviors of a group of individuals that spread from knowledge, beliefs, customs, laws, and habits. So, culture seems to be attached to respective tribal groups. And as I mentioned earlier, a tribe is a group of families who worship the same God. Now we have no doubt that God and Culture are attached. We must look at what culture our tribe is trying to promote and protect. Currently it worships money. A great example is the casino business. It steals from the poor to give to the rich, that is the motto of a casino. It also only protects a small, selected group of individuals within the tribe. An example is the large salary the elected officials and executives make. We even worship these elected officials that are part of the beast, lest we be "slain" by them. Look at how quickly councilors turned from working for and loving the citizens to working and worshipping the current Chief. Surely it wasn't the billions of dollars of influence the beast has? Oddly enough, it sounds more like the beast isn't the chief, isn't the collection of former chiefs and/or councilors, or political consultants. It has become more and more apparent that the beast is an evil deceiver that lurks in the dark. I refer to 2 Thessalonians 2:11-12...Verse 11: "And for this cause God shall send them strong delusion, that they should believe a lie." Verse 12: "That they all might be damned who believed not the truth, but had pleasure in unrighteousness." The beast is the great deception that has been sent by God to separate the truth from the lie. Our culture's salvation, and our individual salvation from the beast is truly the one true God who can make war with the beast. The greatest task that our tribe will face is this moment of choice. Will we be with God, who is able to make war with the beast, or will we fall victims to the beast's wrath? I believe and lean on God's salvation through Jesus Christ, who through his teaching will save us individually and collectively if we will fight to put him between man and God, which is the natural order, and forgo putting government between man and God. Don't struggle with this concept as the concept has been written in your hearts to know of God, know that the love of money is the root of all evil and to deny the flesh of this world is to truly live. God be with you and be with the tribe of the Cherokee people.

WAR ON COMBUSTION ENGINES

Anyone my age has grown up with the use of gasoline powered cars and trucks. Even though our autos may break down occasionally, for the most part they are cost effective and reliable. Another thing that we take for granted is the availability of gas and diesel, even in the most remote areas of our nation. Another thing we take for granted is the fact that our nation is blessed with an abundant source of natural gas and oil to fuel them. While there is a limit to the exhaust emissions reductions, our autos are far more efficient than they were just a few decades ago. Despite all the advantages of using gasoline powered autos, the current administration is spending billions upon billions of dollars to force the idea of electric cars down the throat of the American people.

The Biden proposal aims to boost certain EV sales from 8.4 percent of total vehicle sales today to 67 percent by 2032. In my opinion, the Biden administration is living in some kind of perverted fantasy. I recently read where electric vehicle inventories are increasing and are not being sold. The main concern of many Americans is the availability of charging stations and the length of time necessary to get their cars back on the road. Another huge concern is the cost of the electric autos; from what I have been reading, the cost for electric is many thousands above the cost of a comparable gasoline model. The batteries necessary to run those vehicles require many rare earth minerals; while we Americans have an abundance of crude oil to run the gasoline autos, the Chinese are the people who control a huge part of the global rare earth minerals to build the batteries.

It is about time that we Americans wake up and smell the coffee, China is our most powerful adversary. We Americans rely upon China for much of our pharmaceuticals, clothing, electronic appliances, etc. I am not ready to give the Chinese a monopoly on the materials that we would be dependent upon to power our autos. If the Biden administration gets their way, our economy will collapse. Conventional auto manufacturing will be decimated along with the oil and gas industry. Here in my state of Oklahoma, oil and gas revenues provide most of the tax revenues to fund highway construction, schools, health care, etc. A couple of days ago, I read where our State Attorney General Gentner Drummond and attorneys general of 24 other states are challenging the Biden Administration's most radical regulations yet on tailpipe emissions. The average EV sold for $61,448 at the end of 2022. We American are already suffering through high inflation caused by the excessive spending and foolish policies implemented by resident Biden and his band of Marxists. We American are unique in the fact that we do not have to put up with all this nonsense. We must demand that our election process is cleaned up and stop allowing elections to be rigged, and search for more reliable sources of information instead of the current mainstream media. The American people are not buying into the EV craze; we have the energy for reliable transportation, the Chinese do not. The Chinese have the rare earth minerals, we do not. It is time the current administration regains some kind of sanity and stops the war on combustion engines.

WHAT'S SO PUNNY?

PUN FUN

Time sure does fly especially if one is having lots of PUN FUN. As a matter of fact, that reminds this writer of a PUN: Why did the man throw his clock out the window?

He wanted to see time fly! There are more of those if you continue reading. Here is a new PUN batch to tickle your funny bone or your ribs!

1. Hot Stuff: Did you hear about the circus fire? It was in tents.
2. Squirrely Stuff: How do you catch a squirrel? You climb a tree, sit on a branch and act like a nut!
3. Snow Stuff: What do you call a snowman with a six pack? An abdominal snowman.
4. Sad Stuff: Why did the math book look sad? It had too many problems.

5. Head Stuff: What did one hat say to the other hat? You stay here; I'll go on ahead!

Well, is that enough PUN stuff? Not to worry though. There is always more stuff to come, so stick around for more PUN FUN. Keep your laughter going until then. So long!

A Great Reckoning

A great reckoning is coming, where discord was strumming, saith the Lord. I'm making an account of those that are with me, and leaving behind those that don't choose me. My recollection is clear, it's time to get in gear, so that you do not fear what is near. My children read my written word, not just something you have heard. The truth is written and it will be, remember my word says, the truth will set you free! Black is black and white is white, my word is very clear and will fill you with delight. For I, the Lord, tell you the world will shake, but my divine authority will be the quake. Trending now on TV, the truth, yes, the truth you will begin to see. Be ready for a great silence as I put an end to the violence. When you come out, you will know without a doubt, it was My hand, saith the Lord.

ON THE CAMPAIGN TRAIL

COMMENTARY BY JOHN BANKEL

Today's Trail Treks To..... Driven By Liberty

America is unlike any other country that has ever existed in the history of mankind. While this is not a new revelation, what we have here is often unappreciated by America's citizens and also much misunderstood. The yoke of oppression that our early settlers experienced is hard to fathom if one has never experienced it. Truly, that yoke became unbearable and if, it had not, America would not exist today. America's founding was driven by an existential longing for liberty. What man or woman does not want liberty? The opposite of liberty is slavery. Slavery comes in many forms, not just being fettered on a plantation as a black man or woman. Slavery is always the product of a tyrannical form of government, the master and the slave. When one looks around at other countries, either in the present or the past, the relationship between the citizen and the government rested most often in an autocratic government system. The autocrat, with few exceptions, ruled the roost with an iron fist which effectively chained the citizens to his dictates. Freedom went out the window. Rebellion was the only route to freedom. It is what happened to the 13 colonies in 1776 when the brave citizens took up arms against their oppressor and set themselves free. Liberty wrested from the hands of tyranny. Once a man or woman tastes liberty, going back to tyranny is not in the cards. The Biden regime has shown its true colors from the very start of its term ruling with edict after edict known as executive orders. With each order, more and more constraints are placed upon the life of liberty that Americans have enjoyed since our nation's inception. Tyranny once more has raised its ugly head.

How far will this tyranny go? If Biden and his ruling class have their way, they will not stop until America has become a totalitarian state after the model of China. What will stop this devolution into the abyss of communism? The difference between America and other countries who have succumbed to communism is this: Americans have tasted liberty and are driven to remain FREE.

Today's Trail has come to an end. Perhaps we will meet again around the bend, my friend. May your Trail end up on the right side of the fence. Happy Trails to you!
