Constitution Signing Day September 17

Way back when, all those many years ago-236 to be exact- the newly drafted Constitution of the United States of America was signed in secret by the delegates to the Constitutional Convention. The signing took place on September 17, 1787. This 4 page document established a republican form of government of the United States, a government of the people, for the people and by the people. It is still in existence today, although it has been amended numerous times along the way and is currently under fire by those forces that seek to destroy the government so created and replace it with a Marxist model under the guise of a "social democracy," within which freedom will only be a distant notion. There is a need for a revival of the principles set forth in this document. There is a group that is doing just that. The Patriot Academy is offering FREE Constitution classes throughout the land. One such place is the Stilwell Library. Each Tuesday at 6 pm through November 10, lovers of freedom can take part in a class called "Constitution Alive" and learn or reinforce their understanding and appreciation of our Constitution.

By John Bankel

The Constitution of the United States divides the federal government into three branches: legislative, executive, and judicial. This ensures that no individual or group will have too much power.

"A well-regulated militia, being necessary to the security of a free state, the right of the people to keep and bear arms shall not be infringed."

James Madison

"Nothing is more dreaded than the national government meddling with religion." — John Adams in a letter to Benjamin Rush

"If Freedom of Speech Is Taken Away, Then Dumb and Silent We May Be Led, Like Sheep to the Slaughter."

George Washington

"We the People of the United States, in Order to form a more perfect Union, establish Justice, insure domestic Tranquility, provide for the common defence, promote the general Welfare, and secure the Blessings of Liberty to ourselves and our Posterity, do ordain and establish this Constitution for the United States of America."

They Risked It All/It's the Truth MEMORIES OF FARM AND FAMILY

Number 42

By Donna Boecher

Believe it or not, in the olden days of the 1950's, I walked barefooted on the rocks in Zion. Of course, I was ten years old and weighed about 75 pounds. It seemed like I floated across the tops of the stones. Mother reminded me that she'd had to threaten me more than once to put on my shoes when going anywhere outside in Texas. However, when I spent the summers with my grandmother, it was okay to go barefooted unless we were visiting friends or family. But the inevitable happened one day, I stepped on a nail in the yard. Apparently, a carpenter or roofer had failed to pick up this nail. My foot began to swell, so Granny cleaned my foot and quickly plucked some leaves from the Madeira Vine on the outside wall of the screened-in back porch. She wilted them over the propane stove burner and applied them to my foot. The poultice was so comforting. But she did understand the ramifications of getting an infection and contracting "lockjaw." Shortly after, my grandfather took me to Doctor Green for a Tetnus shot. I'm in my 70's, so it's been a day or two since that day, but I remember many of the home remedies she knew, such as cobwebs to stop bleeding. My only regret was that I didn't write down the cures. Does your grandmother have a remedy of her own? Ask her.

ON THE CAMPAIGN TRAIL

COMMENTARY BY JOHN BANKEL

Today's Trail Treks To.....

Bucks Today, Heck With Tomorrow

The EV (Electric Vehicle) industry is revving up and by all indications is getting ready to go into overdrive. All the major car manufacturers are now fully on board the EV bandwagon. There is plenty of money to be made, mad money I call it. Supposedly a conversion to ALL electric vehicles will save our planet? But will it, really? Very little thought has gone into the long term consequences of rallying around battery operated vehicles. Yes, there are many short term advantages in owning such a car or truck or tractor. Economy is certainly one, if we look at the short term. Long term maybe not. Replacing one of these worn out power cells is anything but cheap. One might as well just buy a brand new vehicle and chalk it up to loss. Now consider where all these toxic canisters end up along with their car-casses. Will a litter of EV's in your local junk yard help save the planet? No genius needed to solve that one. Or how about the supply of the batteries' ingredients? Lithium is the main mineral that makes the batteries tick. Mining this stuff is anything but benign. Enormous amounts of earth must be moved in order to extract just a tiny amount of Lithium. What that mining leaves behind is a nasty environmental wound to our planet. Not only that, surely the geniuses behind this "save the planet" movement apparently have not given much thought to the fact that the supply of Lithium is neither renewable nor sustainable. So much for that. On the human rights side of this is the inexorable exploitation of our planet's poor to keep the pipeline filled. Are any of these leftists, who pride themselves in equality, equanimity and social justice, concerning themselves with the human cost of their vain imaginations?

No, they pretend it does not exist. Finally, let us not forget the promised government mandate that all must make this conversion. That mandate is a great example of the totalitarian state exercising its ultimate power over the people, with its incumbent ultimate suffering of the masses at the hands of the exploiters who care only for bucks today, heck with tomorrow.

Today's Trail has come to an end. Perhaps we will meet again around the bend, my friend. Meantime, may your Trail end up on the right side of the fence. Happy Trails to you.

Kickoff 7 pm.

Watts Engineers: 8 Man Football

In a Friday, Sept. 8 home football game, the Watts Engineers took on Cross Christian Academy (CCA). Watts came into the game at 1-1. The game remained competitive throughout but CCA took home a win as they defeated the Engineers 24-14. Watts is now 1-2. Their next game will be at home on Sept. 22 versus South Coffeyville High School (SCHS). Kickoff at 7 pm.

Westville Yellowjackets

The Yellowjackets played a Saturday, Sept. 16 away game versus Tahlequah Sequoyah High School. Westville was looking for its first win of the season, having suffered back to back blowouts at the hands of two higher class Arkansas schools. This week turned out to be different. In this non-conference encounter, the Yellowjackets were playing within their category and came out a winner with a much needed victory besting the Indians 44-22. This win is a good sign the Yellowjackets can bounce back from adversity. Their next game will bring Beggs to Westville on Sept. 22. Kickoff at 7 pm.

Indians Go 2-0 With 20-0 Shutout Win

It is not often that the Stilwell Indians football faithful can celebrate a 2-0 season start. On Friday, Sept. 8, at James Bradley Memorial Field, the Keys Cougars came to town with an upset in mind. Keys got the ball first at their own 20. Their drive was throttled when Dustin Noisewater picked off a pass and took it to the house down the south sideline. Chalino Martinez kicked the XP to make it 7-0 at 10:09 of Q1. On the ensuing Keys possession, Noisewater stopped their drive with his second interception of the quarter. Stilwell got the ball at the Keys 36. This drive stalled at the Keys 2 yard line. Keys took over on downs and moved the ball to their own 34 but a fumble, recovered by Dustin Noisewater at 2:59, gave Stilwell another opportunity to put points on the board. Indeed, the Indians took the ball into the end zone on a 5 yard Chalino Martinez scamper in the second quarter with 11:49 on the clock. The extra point made it 14-0, thanks in large part to the ball hawking skills of Dustin Noisewater. Yet, he is not the only member of the defense that shone. The entire defensive unit stepped up time and time again to keep the Cougars at bay. 14-0 stood until 10:30 of the 4th Quarter when Juan Martinez unloaded a bomb to Freshman Brayton Carter. The extra point failed but the fate of the Keys Cougars was sealed. The rest of the way, the stellar Stilwell defense kept the Cougars out of the end zone as they added one more interception and one more fumble recovery to make it a total of 4 interceptions and 2 fumble recoveries for the night. Those 6 turnovers match the number of turnovers in the first game against the Roland Rangers! For Game 3, the Indians travel to Stigler. The Stigler squad has earned a #6 ranking in Class 3A and is currently 2-0 on the season. The Indians will be tested in this one. Kickoff is 7 pm. Let's bring it on and make it 3-0!

Freshman Chase Benham has distinguished himself on both sides of the ball in the first 2 games which has set a tone for what should be an outstanding Stilwell High School football career...

THE CONSERVATIVE VIEW

By Russell Turner

ONE SET OF LAWS?

Our nation was founded upon the idea of a nation governed by the rule of law; while that is a very noble concept, we have gotten into a system where interpretation of those laws is subject to the opinions of countless individuals. I have found even simple cases are subject to a wide interpretation, you can ask a dozen different lawyers about a case and you will usually get 12 different answers. Like many other Americans I am losing confidence daily in our once-great system of justice. Even a blind man could see the politicization of our system, the constant indictments of Donald Trump has become the focus of the elected class. This nation's foreign policy is becoming a complete shamble, but their focus on getting Trump is their main priority. According to some of the best legal minds in our nation, if Trump gets convicted in any of the current cases they will be overturned in appeal. The current goal is to get an unjustified conviction and try to apply the 14th amendment to not allow Trump to run for the presidency.

When you look at the charges, these prosecutors are going back to laws that were passed over a hundred years ago. A theory that has recently been floated in the media claims that the former president could be blocked from ballots under Section 3 of the 14th Amendment via the Disqualifications Clause, which states that individuals who "have engaged in insurrection or rebellion" cannot hold office. Proponents of the claim say that President Trump engaged in "insurrection" during the Jan. 6, 2021, Capitol breach. Most of the people attending the rally on Jan 6th were peacefully and patriotically using their first amendment rights; sadly, there were those who did riot at the capitol, and I have never seen any information that showed Trump calling for any violence. The left likes to bring up the incident on Jan 6th but they contentedly ignore the fact that Trump offered ten thousand National Guard troops before the event to maintain order and Nancy Pelosi declined the offer. Also let us not forget the so-called summer of love, when BLM and Antifa were looting and burning cities across the nation and our beloved Vice President was out raising money to create a bail fund to get those violent rioters out of jail so that they could go out and riot some more.

Law professor Jonathan Turley was quoted as saying, "The amendment was written to deal with those who engage in an actual rebellion causing hundreds of thousands of deaths. Advocates would extend the reference to 'insurrection or rebellion' to include unsupported claims and challenges involving election fraud." The advocates of this current idea claim Trump can be barred from the ballot without any charge, let alone a conviction, of insurrection or rebellion. One of the main individuals pushing the current narrative is none other than US Rep. Adam Schiff from California, he is the same one who promoted the false story about Trump being a Russian operative. He is also the same person who pushed for impeaching Trump for making a phone call to the leader of Ukraine, where he tried to get to the bottom of shady deals of the Biden family and a corrupt Ukrainian oil company. Thanks to the current House Republicans and their investigations, we are now seeing that Trump was totally correct and Schiff was totally wrong. As far as I am concerned, the words of Adam Schiff mean nothing.

What we Americans are witnessing is a disgusting abuse of our legal system by a bunch of people of low character, they do not even try to hide their attempts at election interference. If it were not for the determination of Trump and his ability to weather the financial storm, they would be successful. What they are trying to do is to deny the American people the right to choose who they want to run this nation.

WHAT'S SO PUNNY?

PUN FUN

What a week today is? So quickly the time seems to pass by. The passing of PUN FUN is just as randomly rampantly rapid. Puns seem to multiply as they constantly fly by. A new batch is coming your way today. A quintet of rib ticklers and funny bone touchers await your perusal. It is almost corn pickin' season so we got some corny ones for you.

1. Bearly Funny: What would bears be without bees? Ears.
2. Early Funny: What does corn say when it gets a compliment? Aw, shucks.
3. Music Maestro: What is the director of the cornfield band called? The cornductor.
4. A Kernel Of Sound: How do you play a corncob? By ear.
5. Harvest Time: Why is a corn harvest stored in a silo? Because it won't fit into the farmer's living room.

Enough corn for one day. Time to go out and eat some Fritos or chew on a cob or pick some corn, while waiting for next week's PUN FUN. Keep your ribs tickled and smile a while. So long!

Memorial Day has passed as has D-Day the 6th of June, and so has the 4th of July, but still to come are November 11th Veterans Day, and lest we forget Dec 7 th Pear Harbor Day. These five days are marked down to commemorate the sacrifices of American Soldiers who served in the armed forces of the United States. The days mean and meant different things to those who served in the many wars that America has fought in.

I know it did to Joe Scout. He was simply a Cherokee ndn from the hills of Adair County. Scout was not his real last name. Joe graduated from Sequoyah High School and then was drafted during the Vietnam war. His tour of duty was in Nam he served in country with the 23 rd Infantry Division known as the Americal Division. He came home to a country that did not like him or want him around. Even though his roots went back further than the land known as America roots go. But there were people who missed the draft or had deferment or crossed the border. They missed the luxurious living quarters that Joe enjoyed. A nice sandbagged bunker on top of a mountain surrounded by lush forested hills and valleys. He said "It could be a bit noisy with the big guns i.e. artillery going off at all hours of the night or day." All he had to worry about was the nocturnal visitors such as the rats, mosquitoes, and those black clad people from the north. He also mentioned that right on time came those goodies from base camp. The ammo for the one-ohh-deuces and one-ohh-fives. Rest came after fire missions or what he called the mad minute of firing the guns. A lot of work for ammo bearers whether in the heat or during the muddy season. The draft dodgers missed the gourmet c-rations that Joe enjoyed as all service personnel have during their time of service. Who can forget the fruit cake, ham and eggs, gravy and potatoes, and of course the all time favorite spaghetti and meatballs! This idyllic resort that was his to enjoy while in Nam did come with some not so enjoyable happenings. Like the time the chinooks accidentally dropped their ammo into the valley. Joe and company went down to retrieve it and he stumbled upon a black clad body lying in a stream bed. His world suddenly changed as he viewed the body, the war had come closer to his bunker. He recounted the time one of the sergeants had caught a Vietnamese worker pacing off the measurements of the base. Joe said "Dean I never saw the guy again." And the time an owl would sit on top of the security fence post. Maybe it was the same Sergeant or not who walked by with some det-cord and wrapped it around the post. The Owl came as usual and settled on top of the post and blam! No more Owl just some feathers floating down! Yep, Joe still wondered whooo was that sergeant? He got bit by a rat later that year but that was why he got sent to Japan for some rest and recuperation. Some things are better left unsaid. His greatest thrill during this was seeing Mt. Fuji. He came home shortly afterwards and after some years got married. He kept some things closed off as all veterans of war do. He made it home alive and wondered for years why he did and others did not. He dealt with guilt about lobbing artillery at nameless and faceless people. He even kept the Americal patch hidden away. Too many people who never served raised their voices in protest and called all those of the Americal Division "baby killers." Later, on he found the grace of God and forgave those who did not go and for him being there.. He wore the crest of the 23 rd Infantry Division with the four stars. The four stars represent the Southern Cross of the Americal Division. He started to enjoy life, playing softball, walking in the mountains, and fishing and of course the 4 th of July. The fireworks maybe brought back memories of firing off some bigger fireworks from the arty guns. We found out later his health suffered from exposure to Agent Orange.

He passed from this life unto the next. There are no statues of him nor did he have any songs written about him. All he wore are those of the National Defense ribbon and the Vietnam service ribbon. As taps are played signaling the passing of service people being laid to rest. Reveille is sounded for those who have Jesus as their saviour to awake unto life eternal. Joe Scout was the nickname I gave him to all others he was simply Joe Scott. Or Jock. To others husband, dad, son, friend....He served as other NDNs' because this was still his country.

Psalms 91:1, 2
