Bell Elementary: Focus On Academia

The old gym will have a new face...

Garden pavilion...

Hydroponic greenhouse underway...

Second greenhouse.

Chicken coop the students built...

Tony Davidson, Principal at Bell Elementary School, invited Donna Boecher and myself out to the school for which he has been the Principal for 15 years. Bell is a small, in numbers, school situated on Bell Road past the Stomp Grounds. It sits in a pastoral setting surrounded by the Ozark Foothills. With a student body, from Pre-K to 8th grade, of around 70 students, Principal Davidson has some big plans for his students. His focus is not on sports, as is the case in many other schools. Rather he touts academics. He and Misty Smith, the new receptionist, took us on a tour of the hands-on projects on which the students get to work. Because of several grant awards the school now boasts a couple of greenhouses, one of which will be a hydroponic grow facility, a gardening pavilion, a raised bed garden and a brand new chicken coop which contains chickens that the students hatched and nurtured. Davidson said that the hens should be laying sometime in September. In addition, there were 6 students, 5 girls and 1 boy, who were engaged in a sewing machine sewing project. The girls made their own ribbon dresses and the boy a ribbon shirt which they now proudly wear. The lessons the students learn through these projects will pay big dividends for all their lives. All of this is the brainchild of Chad Smith, the Science teacher and athletic coach. Mr. Smith has an Agriculture degree from OSU and is now able to put that degree into practice. Watching their gardens grow, their chickens hatch and making their own clothes is real hands-on learning. There is an old Chinese proverb which goes something like this: "I hear and I forget; I see and I remember; I do and I understand." Bell Elementary is setting an example for other Adair County Elementary schools to follow with their focus on academia; yet that does not mean that sports do not play an important role in the students' learning experience. The old gym is undergoing a complete makeover to complement the focus on academia. (School enrollment information for the 2023-24 academic year can be found on page 3 of this issue.)

PROVERB POWER

Acts 1: 10,11 KJV

And while they looked stedfastly toward heaven as he went up, behold, two men stood by them in white apparel, which, also said, Ye men of Galilee, why stand ye gazing up into heaven? this same Jesus, which is taken up from you into heaven, shall so come in like manner as ye have seen him go into heaven.

They Risked It All/It's the Truth MEMORIES OF FARM AND FAMILY

Number 32

By Donna Boecher

The 4th of July has passed and our next holiday thanking those who died for our freedom won't come until November 11th. The thanks we give to our military needs to be ON-GOING! One hundred and six years ago, my great-uncle, George Nolan, traveled halfway around the world to protect our freedom. It was the war to end all wars! TODAY our military is on continuous alert to keep the peace; yet there are those in our government who would give our freedom away. The veterans we celebrate in November were known as the G.I. Generation, very apt! Maybe you had an uncle like mine. The war started on April 6, 1917, and they ended it on November 11, 1918. They "gotter done." The residents of the White House would have us limit our access to firearms, opening us to takeover from foreign or domestic terrorists. My suggestion. Support the military - Army, Navy, Marines, Coast Guard, Air Force, Space Force, plus the Army and Air Force National Guard and VOTE to keep your rights protected.

HAPPENING AROUND STILWELL

The OSU Extension Office - Adair Co. Oklahoma hosted the first of its two 4-H Youth Development camps planned for July at the Adair County Fairgrounds.

The Extension Office also has plans for a 4-H STEM camp on July 21. You can contact the OSU Adair County Extension office for more details.

Dear John,

My husband and I have been married for 48 years. We recently attended our class reunion. He was on cloud nine remembering his "glory days." There was his re-enactment of the football game when he made a spectacular touchdown. Then the back slapping happy time when the guys recalled how he got his finger stuck in a beer bottle. I was really getting bored until they brought up the junior-senior prom. My husband looked at me and said, "You were beautiful, all decked out." I said, "You didn't take me." He said, "That wasn't you?" Honestly, he would not have made it to the class reunion if I didn't RSVP and remind him. How can he remember a touchdown 50 years ago, but not who he took to the prom?

The Prom Queen

Dear Prom Queen, recollections can get fuzzy as the years pass by. For each one of us, there are certain unforgettable people, places and events. Then there is the difference between a man and a woman. Men tend to cherish some "heroic" exploits from their youth, like scoring the winning touchdown in a rivalry game. Women tend to remember their special relationship moments, like going to the prom or becoming prom queen. After 48 years with the same man, Dear John congratulates both of you for staying together. Forgetting who your mate took to the prom is excusable after all those years. One thing to keep your eye on is the fact that he obviously had his eye on you on that memorable prom night. And that, in itself, should be unforgettable.

Sincerely,

Dear John

ON THE CAMPAIGN TRAIL

COMMENTARY BY JOHN BANKEL

Today's Trail Treks To.....

The Irreparable Harm Of Affirmative Action

The Supreme Court of the United States (SCOTUS), in a 6-3 decision, recently struck down a law which had instituted Affirmative Action. That law was passed in the 1970's. It was initiated by 2 far-left pompous mega-racist pseudo pastors,

Al Sharpton and Jesse Jackson Jr. Their claim was that members of the black minority in America were getting short shrift when it came to education and employment and Congress had to fix it. Well fix it they didn't. While passing a law intended to fix a problem that may have only existed in the radical minds of the above-mentioned rabble rousers, the law ended up creating a non-stop merry-go-round of unqualified, uneducated individuals who, at every turn, played the race card to get where they wanted to go at the expense of the qualified. Victimhood turned out to be the way in the door in the workplace and the government, where often the most unqualified person got the job.

The long-term debilitating affect is really being felt today when one looks at the radical Biden regime. Take the know-nothing, do-nothing VP as a prime example. She is a product of Affirmative Action. It is astounding, to say the least, that she was accepted by Harvard, ostensibly one of the most prestigious universities on the planet, and, as far as I know, got herself a degree in the process. If there ever needs to be a poster child for the harm that Affirmative Action has caused and is still causing America, Kamala Harris has my vote. She also has my vote to get her out the door. The SCOTUS decision was a long time coming. Is it too late? Can the harm be undone?

Today's Trail has come to an end. Perhaps we will meet again around the bend my friend? May your Trail end up on the right side of the fence. Happy Trails to you!

THE CONSERVATIVE VIEW

By Russell Turner

TIME FOR A FORD OR CHEVY

Over the past couple of years, we Americans have witnessed inflation that we have not seen in the past 40 years. Most competent economists agree that the root cause of the inflation is the out-of-control spending by our federal government. Anytime more money is pumped into the system, it devalues the money that we have earned and saved over the years. We humans have a bad habit of borrowing money if we have a line of credit, even if the price of goods has risen to a ridiculous amount. All you have to do is to look at the monthly balances that many people carry on their credit cards, it is very easy to put off the pain of paying the total balance in lieu of just paying the monthly minimum. We Americans have become a people that demand instant gratification; in other words, we want something now and we are not going to worry about the consequences that might follow us in the future.

Just last week the Supreme Court of the United States (SCOTUS) made the ruling that resident Biden's big promise to cancel student loan debt was illegal, with that ruling there was untold wailing and gnashing of teeth across our fair land. The ruling by SCOTUS should not come as a surprise to anyone who understands our system of government. The president does not have the legal authority to write off student loan debts; it must go through Congress, and I bet even the Biden administration knew that. What Biden and his cohorts were doing was to manipulate the people into voting for him in the next election with a promise that was totally illegal. Education is very high today, but so is every thing else necessary to start a business. Education is a tool that we can use to make a living, and that knowledge can never be taken away. In my business I also must have an education which I paid for, I also must buy the tools necessary to operate my business; and if I do not pay for those tools, the repo man will come and take them away from me. People like myself do not have the political clout to protest and demand that my business expenses will be written off by the government, nor should we.

Every decision we make in our careers involves risk; too many Americans, even with their high education, do not understand that simple concept. I was always taught when you make a debt, you also need to make plans to pay it off; and if you cannot pay it off, don't make the debt in the first place.

The problem in higher education is simple, there are no incentives for our colleges and universities to keep their tuition affordable. The tuition rates just keep climbing and our people do not have the courage to say enough is enough. Even though the rates keep spiraling upward, people keep taking out ever-increasing government loans to pay for it. In my business, I may want more money, but I must charge what the traffic will bear. We have gotten into a system where higher ed knows no matter how high their rates go, people will take out loans to go there. In education, we need to use the skills we use in negotiating for purchasing a new auto; we might want a new Ferrari, but we might have to settle for a Ford or Chevy.

4-H'ers learn and make memories on Citizenship Washington Focus trip

By Trisha Gedon

STILLWATER, Okla. – A delegation of Oklahoma 4-H'ers not only learned more about the nation's governmental process, but they also had fun, made life-long friends and created lasting memories during the Citizenship Washington Focus trip. Twenty-eight club members and three adult sponsors made the bus trip to Washington, D.C., June 15-24 where they participated in educational workshops, wrote mock legislation and toured many of the sites in the nation's capital. Attending from Adair County was Maci Atchison.

One of the goals of the Oklahoma 4-H Youth Development program is to encourage club members to become civically engaged in their communities and provide opportunities for them to grow into productive adults. "In 4-H we do hands-on learning," said Cathleen Taylor, state leadership and civic engagement specialist with the State 4-H office at Oklahoma State University. "How better to learn about the government than being in Washington, D.C. and experiencing the sights, sounds and history? This is an experience that takes youth beyond their classrooms and textbooks and puts them in the middle of the action." The group stopped at Gettysburg where they experienced a guided tour, and they also attended a Lancaster Barnstormers baseball game. A stop in Philadelphia allowed the group to visit the Liberty Bell and Independence Hall.

After arriving in Washington, D.C., the delegates had several busy days full of educational workshops and tours. Some of the sites they visited include the Whitehouse, Franklin D. Roosevelt and Martin Luther King Memorials, Arlington National Cemetery, Marine Corps War Memorial, Pentagon Memorial, World War I Memorial, the Holocaust Museum and some of the Smithsonian Museums. They also took part in a night tour of the city. Taylor said the delegates developed a state action plan to implement in Oklahoma later this year. Other activities included a scavenger hunt at the O Museum in the Mansion; visits to Capitol Hill and meeting with Representative Josh Brecheen and other legislative aides to learn more about the legislative branch of government; a presentation of Twilight Tattoo and a walk-through, live-action performance about the history of the U.S. military.

WHAT'S SO PUNNY?

PUN FUN

Once again, it is PUN FUN Time. Time flies when you are having fun especially if it is PUN FUN. Today's puns are designed to tickle your funny bone or your ribs and give you some healthy laughs. Let these laughs last awhile so you will always wear a smile. Here is a new batch of doldrum busters, the corny kind.

1. Ah So: How do you make an egg-roll? You push it!
2. First or Last?: I ordered a chicken and an egg online. I will let you know which came first!
3. Ear! Ear!: What does corn say when it gets a compliment? Aw, shucks...
4. Ahoy There: What do sea monsters eat? Fish and Ships.
5. No Fly Zone: Why do seagulls fly over the sea? Because if they flew over the bay, they would be bagels!

Okay, that's enough already. There are only so many puns one can handle at one sitting. No need to get pun overload. Hope these got to tickling something in you? Keep the smile going until next week for more PUN FUN!

4-H Parent Volunteer Recognized at Conference

In June two very special ladies got recognized at the Oklahoma State 4-H Parent Volunteer Conference for their hard work and dedication to our Adair County 4-H youth. Frances Turman, from Rocky Mountain School, and Tiffany Clawson, from Dahlongah School. We are SO PROUD to have these women involved and the special awards presented were WELL deserved. Thank you for your years of commitment to our kids!!

I want to say thank you to all that came out today to help me open up baby girls memorial sunroom for her friends and so many others we have lost. It's hard to believe it's been 6 years . And a special thank you to those who have helped with it. All the many sleepless nights and long hot days in the sun paid off. We hit our target and made baby's angel anniversary tribute on time. I went up before the opening started and placed her things and her new flowers I didn't get pics of it all lit up but I will. Appreciate my adopted kids that came to see momma and my friends that came to celebrate her angel anniversary. And for eating with me baby's favorite meal of Mexican food it was always her thing to do. I truly and grateful. My eyes hurt from tears today it's been a rough one. But I know baby girl and the rest was smiling down and watching from heaven

A MEASURE OF FAITH

“For I say, through the grace given unto me, to every man that is among you, not to think of himself more highly than he ought to think; but to think soberly, according as God hath dealt to every man the measure of faith.” ROMANS 12:3 KJV

COMMENTARY BY William Wear

We currently exist in a society that glorifies and makes a god out of anything and everything. It is satan who has been crafty enough to fool us as parents about what is truly important in life especially when it comes to our kids. One of the tactics satan uses is to keep us and especially the kids so inundated and covered up with activities it becomes the only life that exists. Sports is a huge elephant in the room that I hear parents complain about but nothing seems to change rather gets only further and deeper into the belief that it has to happen. We have kids who, rather than get a summer break, end up spending even more time with travel squads, school squads (yes it is happening) multiple sports like softball, soccer, basketball, etc. Weekday ballgames, practices, weightlifting, lessons, and tournaments each and every weekend become so overwhelming of our time and resources that we think this is all there is to life especially for the family unit. We spend hundreds and thousands of dollars attending, providing meals, eating out, fees, extra fund raising, equipment, fuel, and missed wages attempting to do everything as it's expected and vital to our existence thinking this will help my kid get playing time or who knows what else. It has become evident that the “coach” now runs life for each player's family as they call impromptu practices, games, meetings, etc at a moments notice disregarding any prior obligations the child may have and deeming it less important than the sport he or she coaches. It becomes a submit to what I want or pay the consequences. Players are told that if you miss you will have to do all kinds of extra work as make up and it has to be on your own time however, someone (a coach) will have to be there to keep you honest and by the way I'm not doing it while you're already here for practice. You will miss regular school games etc if you don't comply and your commitment to the team is the only thing you should worry about. It's nothing more than extortion and a god complex for some who seem to have a need to control others rather than mentor. Family vacations are becoming extinct and less of a priority along with attending church which should be our ONLY priority. I am positive that in the end God will not say “good job my faithful servant you attended all practices and games required of you! Also your parents paid all of the prices required and gave up time building the family up at the ball games!” We need to rethink our submission to this and put it back into an extra curricular activity that does not trump what truly is important. We all know parents who, once the children leave the nest do not know how to interact with one another and don't know what to do now? Divorce rates are high and there is little to no investment in the couple for too many years. Sports became the god and when it's gone and the children didn't go to the next level as they were told was possible their whole life if they worked hard, it quickly becomes clear that only a very few are chosen. Sorrow sets in as we missed all of the important things that could've been but will never get back. Coaches, administrators, parents, and kids, life is too short to not experience family time along with adding in some time doing what you enjoy just do so to have fun but not make it your god or force your god on families. Many will perhaps say in response, “I only do it for the kids and want them reach their potential.” While that sounds good it's not typically all truth. If you want what is best then it will be what Lord God wants for them not building other gods to be in submission to. -ww
