An Old Gas Station Gets A New Life

Commentary By: John Bankel

The corner of Williams St. and Route 62 in Westville is a mighty busy intersection. Who has not noticed the quaint almost fairy tale like brick structure that has stood there for what seems like forever? At one time, this little building served many a motorist with petrol, the Philips 66 kind, as shown in the old photo, and then, sometime later on, added mechanic services next door. It had been sitting there dormant for quite a while and started looking really shabby. It seemed like no one knew what to do with this "mini Westville icon", that is until about 2 years ago when builders showed up and began a renovation. The restoration maintained all of the attractive qualities that this former gas station deserved. Just the other day, I passed by to notice some hub-bub going on. I took a photo. The photo shows a banner and an old gas station sign had been put up. I stopped to talk with one of the men there. He said his name is Phil Brady and that he is the new owner. He told me that he had come from California at the behest of a friend in Arkansas. He had sold his acreage in California's wine country where he worked as a rancher, as an architect and in the construction industry. His plan for this property, which also includes a 3 bay former mechanics shop next door, is to offer pet grooming under the name "The Chop Shop" with the mechanics shop offering custom auto parts under the same name. Clever, one must admit. Mr. Brady is excited about his new venture and is very happy to be "from California." He is looking forward to bringing his project to a successful completion and opening his "Chop Shop." Westville is starting to pop like a kettle of popcorn. Mr. Brady's enterprise is one of the kernels. Best wishes Mr. Brady.

Watts Dollar General Taking Shape

Watts is on its way to having a full blown Dollar General, which could pave the way to an economic upturn for the town. This store is said to be the largest in the region and will offer produce among all the other Dollar General products. While at this writing the opening date is yet unknown, it may just coincide with the upcoming holiday period, perhaps even as early as Halloween. Halloween is seen to be the second largest money maker for the retail industry so the opening on that date could be a real treat for all of us but especially for the Watts Dollar General!

Health Tips from Larkin.....

1. Health tips from Larkin: Bach flowers: Part 7: Cherry plum: The negative Cherry Plum state is nothing if not dangerous. In this state, individuals may feel as though they are about to lose their minds or "explode." Many fear that they will commit acts of extreme violence. Others harbor thoughts of suicide - either physically or at a mental level. The processes of spiritual and mental growth that occur when energies are balanced are almost frantically suppressed, as the person seeks to deny the dark forces which reside in everyone. The person's own terror that dark thoughts could lead to dark actions causes them to try to drive down and suppress all such thoughts. Before treatment with Bach Flower Remedies, the person in a negative Cherry Plum state is unable to face his or her own inner feelings and completely denies the guidance of life. This personality suffers from a fundamental fear of opening up to the process of development. They are literally unable to "let go." Men who have fought in wars and endured days of continuous shelling, or who have spent time in prison camps under brutal interrogation have often developed negative Cherry Plum states. Children in need of the remedy are often bedwetters. These children, who keep themselves under tight control during waking hours, let their inner anxieties come to free expression only when there is no conscious bodily control. Once in treatment with Bach Flower Essences, the personality will begin to submit itself to the guidance of the Higher Self. There it can be led through the chaos to the light. After reconnecting with the Higher Self and passing through this state, these individuals are often able to bear extreme adversities that would break a lesser personality. In the positive Cherry Plum state, one becomes able to enter deeply into the unconscious and to use the insights gained there. He or she becomes connected to a powerful reservoir of spiritual strength, gains great spiritual insight, and makes tremendous advances in personal development. MOMENTS WITH MARIE

By Donna Boecher

Serial No. 6 Marie watched as Rachael Campbell found what looked like her own name in Ancestry. There was the birth certificate of a Rachael Anne Campbell. Suddenly, Marie heard Rachael take a quick loud inward breath. She couldn't take her eyes off the computer screen. She had to know more. Maybe there was a death certificate or mention of her in the local newspaper archives. What she quickly learned was that Week 1 had 2 korrekt kryptos, from Roy R. and Beth E. There may still be others coming from Week 2? The Kontest is fully underway. So if you have not yet, come on and play. This week the answer is 15.

You are playing with: 4, 7, 9, 17, 24 Remember, you must use all 5 numbers, but each one only once, and any combination of addition, subtraction, multiplication and division to write an expression that equals 15. Give it a try...it is fun...it is Kryoto.

Searching for a Word – emulate: to imitate
Ex. Edgar Rice Burroughs is thought to have liked Rudyard Kipling's stories - of Mogli in Jungle Book – that he emulated his character in his Tarzan books.

Dear John,
I lost my wallet. A few days ago, my girlfriend gave it to me and said I left it in her car. I had over $800.00. I counted my money and $200.00 dollars was missing. I confronted her and she admitted that she took the money for her reward. I didn't know what to do. So, I told my dad he said, "son I haven't been in control of my money since I married your mom". I told my mom and she said, "you're lucky she didn't take more". This lack of sympathy from my family really bothers me. You're my last resort. I really like my girlfriend. I don't want to break up with her I would have to walk everywhere. Do you think she was wrong keeping my money for a reward?

No Wheels
Dear Without Wheels... your dilemma is one of your own making. Two things are clear: First of all, leaving your wallet with $800 behind is rather careless, regardless of where you left it. You should be thankful it was left in your girlfriend's car and that it only cost you $200. She did you a favor. Secondly, you have taken advantage of her long enough. If you carry that much money around, then it is time for you to take responsibility for getting your own wheels and no longer be "without wheels."

Sincerely,
Dear John

THE CONSERVATIVE VIEW

By Russell Turner

SPENDING OTHERS MONEY

I recently watched a speech by Kentucky Senator Rand Paul, in the speech he made the comment that it is far easier to spend someone else's money than to spend your own. If anyone ever needs a reminder of that statement, all we need to do is to watch the political antics of politicians wanting to remain in power. It happens in all levels of government from the local level to the highest level, which includes the president. All of the money that our elected leaders like to flaunt around comes from one source, the taxpayers of this nation. The first ploy is to try to give pay raises to the government workers below them in order to gain their favor and to create a group that will support and campaign for their re-election.

All of us at one time or the other have witnessed this behavior on a local level; here in Oklahoma in the race for governor once-republican Joy Hoffmeister, who now is running on the democrat ticket, is proposing a $5,000.00 pay increase for all school teachers across the state. As I remember it wasn't that long ago all of the teachers received a $6,000.00 pay increase. She is claiming that they need more money because of the economic downturn, I would like to give her a revelation - all of the rest of us are experiencing the same downturn. Small business owners, farmers, and ranchers are, for the most part, just barely hanging on. I have also not seen any evidence of the per-capita income in the state making any huge gains. If the economy grows the government will have more revenues, but until that happens it is an insult to squeeze them for more taxes or fees.

On the presidential level, resident Joe Biden is unconstitutionally taking it upon himself to forgive student loans across the country. The hardworking taxpayers of this nation, many of whom have no big degrees, will be forced to pay for the student loans that will be written off. I often wonder if all of the people getting their loans forgiven will be willing to take a menial job for a while, pay taxes, and allow the working people who do not have a degree to be able to go to school and move up the economic ladder? Another thing resident Biden is doing, he is depleting our strategic oil reserve. Biden has depleted the SPR by more than 160 million barrels to its lowest level in 37 years, with reserves falling to about 453 million barrels. That oil is just like money in the bank, it was intended to protect the American people against a disaster whether it was natural or manmade. It was never intended to be a tool to temporarily bring down the price of gasoline so that the American people's attention would be diverted away from the current disastrous energy policy.

If our nation is to survive and continue to be a superpower, we Americans must stop allowing our votes to be purchased by self-serving politicians. We also need to come to the realization that ignoring the plight that is affecting the vast majority of the people of this nation will not simply make it go away. Just remember the words of Senator Paul, "It is far easier to spend other people's money than your own."

Mullin It Over:

Keeping our Commitment to our Veterans

By Congressman Markwayne Mullin

Every life lost to suicide is one too many, and the prevalence among our nation's veterans is alarming. In fact, military suicide rates are four times higher than deaths that occurred during military operations in the last 20 years. When our veterans sign up for service, they commit to protecting the lives of all Americans. We must keep our commitment to them and ensure they have the resources needed to combat mental health challenges when they return home.

According to the most recent reporting from the U.S. Department of Veterans Affairs, 6,146 veterans lost their lives to suicide in 2020. Mental health and substance use challenges have only been exacerbated by COVID-19 and the isolation and uncertainty many have faced throughout various lock downs. Tragically, suicide has now become the second leading cause of death among veterans under age 45. September is National Suicide Prevention Month, a time to raise awareness of this crisis and ensure our loved ones have the resources they need to discuss suicide prevention. Check in on those you love and let them know you care. Listen to them, let them know they're not alone, and encourage them to seek help. This seemingly small act might save their life.

If you or someone you know is experiencing thoughts of suicide, please know help is available. Many of our men and women in uniform who return from war zones face mental health struggles. There are resources available. You can call the Veterans Crisis Line at 1-800-273-8255 or the National Suicide and Crisis Lifeline at 988 (dial 1 for veteran care). You can also text the Veterans Crisis Line at 838255.

Today's Trail Treks To The... School Board Obsolescence

There was a time when American education was administered at the local level by a locally elected school board. The school board consisted of members of the community and many of them had gone through the very system which they now were administering. They knew first hand what policies, including curriculum, would serve the children of their constituents most favorably. The American school system, in those days, performed exceedingly well, always landing at or near the top in student performance compared to other countries. No more. Those days have come and gone and unless something short of a miracle happens, will not return. The unraveling of America's education started a long time ago but its demise was sealed on October 17, 1979 when Democrat President Jimmy Carter formed the Federal Department of Education. It is no secret that once the Federal government gets its mitts on something it does not take long for everything to go south. Education instantaneously became a "POLITICAL FOOTBALL" to be controlled by the remote DC politicians who sought only control and saw only money. The performance of American students went swiftly downhill and has been on a seemingly irreversible slide ever since. But hold on! Notwithstanding the performance debacle, there is yet another deleterious development that is taking place. Although school boards still exist and still exert control over local schools, their ability to do so is now being called into question. Just the other day I saw a news report of a school board that is under fire for its policy position regarding which bathroom trans students can use. The policy, which mandated that a student must use the bathroom of their birth gender, did not go down well with the student body. What happened next is absolutely astounding and frightening. After a robust student protest, which included students insisting that they have a voice in establishing school policy, the school board found itself in unfamiliar territory. Although I have not yet heard the final outcome of this matter, imagine high school students overriding the school board and nullifying their existence? If it happened in one school district, who is to say that it cannot happen in all? This is the outrageous outcome that was in the cards all along when Carter federalized our education system and did away with education and replaced it with his left-wing indoctrination gambit. The rational among us still have a choice to opt out of this demoralizing disgrace and dry up the federal education dollar. It is time for school boards all across America to refuse the federal dollar and operate autonomously like in the good old days and by doing so, save America.

Today's Trail has come to an end. Perhaps we will meet again somewhere around the bend, my friend. May your Trail end up on the right side of the fence.

STILWELL SPORTS SPOTLIGHT

Commentary by John Bankel

4th Quarter Deluge Sinks Indians

On Friday, September 23, the Stilwell Indians football team, sporting a 2-1 record, traveled to Muskogee to take on the always formidable Hilldale Hornets in this season's first District game. Stilwell stuck around for 3 quarters, battling the Hornets toe-to-toe and nose-to-nose in a tight game. At the end of 3 quarters, the scoreboard showed Stilwell down 23-

18. What would follow in the 4th quarter was akin to a torrent, a deluge, as the Hornets swarmed the Indians with a flurry of touchdowns, putting up 28 points. Stilwell managed to score one of their own finishing with 25 points, a great output from the offense and, in many games, 25 would win the day. Final score? Hilldale 51 Stilwell 25. The Indians are now 2-2 heading into their Homecoming game on September 30 against perennial arch-rival, the Sallisaw Black Diamonds. There are many festivities planned to make this Homecoming something very special. Game time is 7 pm. Come out and cheer your Stilwell Indians to a homecoming victory!

A MEASURE OF FAITH

"For I say, through the grace given unto me, to every man that is among you, not to think of himself more highly than he ought to think; but to think soberly, according as God hath dealt to every man the measure of faith." ROMANS 12:3 KJV

By William Wear

Most people in the world will not listen to you no matter what the truth is. It's a matter of the heart wanting what the heart wants. We can spend a lifetime attempting to change hearts for Christ and easily become frustrated to the point of giving up on everything. The truth is this;

2 Corinthians 2:16

To those who are perishing, we are a dreadful smell of death and doom. But to those who are being saved, we are a life-giving perfume. And who is adequate for such a task as this?

The words of Jesus and His expectations are an aroma of death to some and you will be hated because of His words if you attempt to speak truth to some. This is because we have to "put to death" behaviors or idols we hold dear to our hearts. To those who understand that God is truth and his words and expectations are life giving you will be appreciated. We have a hard time changing because it can be painful yet we know that God desires change in us to experience life better and more abundantly!

They Risked It All/It's the Truth MEMORIES OF FARM AND FAMILY

By Donna Boecher

"It" was/is ME. Mother (Maxine) said that Granny called me that when speaking to her about me. "It" was a lovely, sweet child that soaked in everything that her grandmother said and did. Pa Dick was there in the background – soft spoken and calm. He could be seen at meals at the round oak table on the screened-in back porch; otherwise, he was working in the fields or at the barn, in one of two rocking chairs in the living room where they watched television on the wall to the east (left) of the fireplace. You might say he was the Driver... 'cause he did do all the driving until he passed, and I came of age (16). I think the only reason I was allowed to drive the 1946 Ford with suicide doors was Granny and Node's vision was blocked by the house when I failed to immediately use the clutch to stop the car; I'd only driven an automatic. I popped the gate chain on the yard fence before stopping. Granny never drove; I don't know if she was fearful or just needed both hands free to corral her 8 children. I can't remember Uncle Node/George Nolan Renfroe (Granny's brother) not being there; the reason for his presence is another story-in-itself; a handshake and money hadn't been a good enough bill-of-sale for his homestead). See you next week.

Vocabulary word – imitate – to use or follow as a model.

Ex. I imitate my grandmother every day when I make cornbread because she taught me to cook it as a child.
