Teresa Turner: Adair County Assessor Candidate

Commentary by John Bankel

Teresa Turner is well educated. After growing up in Quinton, Oklahoma, a small town near Lake Eufala and graduating as Salutatorian from Quinton High School, Teresa raised two daughters in Tahlequah, after which she decided to enroll at NSU to pursue a degree in Elementary Education. She went on to complete a Masters Degree in Education Administration. Her first teaching job brought her to a 3 year stint at Tenkiller Elementary where she taught Math and Science. Her teaching career continued at Sequoyah Elementary and then to Tahlequah High School where she finished her career teaching computers. Four years ago Teresa retired. Turner describes herself as a Conservative. She has been actively involved in the Adair County Republican party having served as Party Chairwoman. Indeed, service is Turner's calling card. From early on in her high school days, Teresa Turner has earned a reputation for trustworthiness. When I asked her what she will bring to the table as the Adair County Assessor, she said, "I will bring honesty and efficient friendly service to the office, regardless of party or position." Turner has demonstrated those qualities throughout her life. In addition, she stated, "The taxpayers are the boss. The County Assessor is their servant." When asked what she has been doing since retiring from teaching, she said, "I have been helping Russell (her husband) with their ranching and their heating and refrigeration businesses with whatever needs to be done." And without a doubt, Teresa Turner knows how to get the job done. The election is November 8 so be sure to go and vote for whomever you think is the best candidate.

Health Tips from Larkin.....

Health tips from Larkin: Bach flowers: Part 10: Clematis: This is the Bach flower essence for people who are detached from "real life." They prefer to live in the world created within their own minds, and show little response to either good or bad news. This does not endear him to his fellow man, as he exhibits a complete disinterest in other people's enthusiasms or problems. Because most of their psychic energies are used up on the inner planes, Clematis people show little anxiety or aggression - or excitement. In the Clematis state, a person appears to be a "wanderer between the worlds" and reality holds little interest. Clematis personalities are extremely creative and imaginative and do well in occupations such as music, fashion design, journalism, and film-making. However, when their creativity cannot be put to good use, they fall into the negative Clematis state - where their energies can take the form of exaggerated romanticism, delusions, and various kinds of eccentricity. These people have little instinct for self-preservation - making a difficult job for a physician when they fall ill. Often, they give the impression that they'd be perfectly content to pass to the other side - perhaps even looking forward to being reunited with someone who has gone before. This lack of desire for wellness led Dr. Bach to refer to the negative Clematis state a "polite form of suicide." You may recognize a person in need of treatment with this Bach flower therapy by their dreamy look - an unfocused gaze and an attitude of slight confusion. Because they are never fully focused on the present, they have poor memories and little sense of detail. They simply can't take the time to listen well enough to absorb things. The negative Clematis individual is usually very pale, and has cold hands and feet. Because their eyes and ears are more tuned in to their inner world than the physical world, they often develop problems with vision or hearing. Following treatment with Bach Flower Remedies, the Clematis person is able to connect the inner and outer worlds and once again becomes interested in the physical world and the people surrounding him. MOMENTS WITH MARIE

By Donna Boecher

Serial No. 9

It seemed unusual to Rachael that her ancestor Rachael Anne should have drowned without getting fully wet. Bizarre to say the least; the medical examiner James Howard concurred when she talked to him. Rachael Anne had been a widow with no family at her death. Mr. Howard said the county had paid for her burial and small marker. Maybe she had been poisoned and was trying to rinse her mouth, OR someone had carried her there making it appear to be an accident. Her thoughts ran in circles. Before Rachael reported for work at the restaurant, she'd check the funeral homes and see where she had been buried. It was a sad business, but God was in control.

Searching for a Word – meditate. To engage in devotional contemplation, especially prayer.

Ex. At bedtime, I meditate on what to be thankful for, and then I pray.

Dear John,
My husband enjoys racing cars. He and his best friend have a competition going, his friend's car wins. So, my hubby put a new engine in his car. Race day came and the new engine pulled him ahead and my husband's car won. He refused to let his friend look under the hood and lied saying it was a tune up. My husband told others what he had done. After the race I was talking to his wife when another guy came up and was laughing about the deception and he spilled the beans. I could not hide my red face and now there is trouble between his wife and I. She is not going to tell her husband, but I feel bad. What should I do?
Red Faced Wife

Dear Red Faced Wife, competition can sometimes get out of hand. The competitive spirit can override doing what is right. Many a scandal has been precipitated by the "win at all costs" attitude that is pervasive among competitors. Dear John is reminded of a fairly recent controversy that resulted from the Brady and Belichick Caper. That caper became known as "Deflate-gate." You may recall Tom Brady, the New England Patriot Quarterback, was accused of letting the air out of the football to his advantage. In your case, maybe we could call it "swapgate" where your hubby did an engine swap trick on his best friend. "All is fair in love and war," as the old saying goes. This too shall pass. Sincerely,
Dear John

THE CONSERVATIVE VIEW

By Russell Turner

THE TROUBLE WITH DISTRACTIONS

Being distracted has some serious effects on our lives, usually we can avoid them if we just use some common sense. One of the first things that comes to mind is distracted driving; too many people are fooling around with their cell phones and other things while driving down the road. Just take the time to notice how many people are texting and looking down at their cell phones while cruising down the road at 60 miles per hour. All it takes is just an instant to cause a death or a life altering injury to yourself or someone else. Distracted driving is not the only distraction that can alter our lives, recently I read an article by Victor Davis Hanson entitled The Thinnest Veneer of Civilization; his article had a huge impact on me and it mainly dealt with distractions and freedom. I will try to share my take on some of his comments.

We humans in the western world take it for granted that we are an enlightened and civilized people; at one time we were both of them, but we are slipping backwards at an alarming pace. For a culture to develop science, art, music, etc. it can only happen when the people are secure and can be free from state and local coercion. If we have to devote all of our time just to survive and sleep with one eye open, we do not have the time to better the human condition. Too many people in our country and other western powers have become arrogant and believe that we will always be civilized and it is simply a birthright. What we are experiencing today is nothing new, the ancient Greeks and Romans all went down the same path we are going down today, and their whole society died by self-induced foolishness. We are allowing ourselves to be sold a whole load of snake oil in the name of New Green Deal, the banning of the internal combustion engine, and the banning of the materials such as fertilizer that our farmers must have to feed the population of this nation. We have become accustomed to the foolishness of the idea of defunding our police, and the biggest foolishness of allowing an invasion on our southern border by individuals who, for the most part, have no skills or means to take care of themselves and their families.

Even our military is being targeted, recruitments are coming up short. The purpose of our military is to break things and to be able to kill our enemies. Instead, our soldiers are being harassed by the woke crowd and indoctrinated with their twisted philosophy. Our once-beautiful major cities are becoming filthy, crime-ridden, and a disgrace to our nation. With the implementation of no-bail laws, the law-abiding citizens are becoming prey to the animals whose only desire is to steal and live off of the labors of others.

If we Americans are foolish enough to think that we can remain a civilized society by not addressing the concerns I have listed, we will go the same way as the ancient Greeks and Romans. If the hard-working people of this nation have to stay awake all night trying to protect what is theirs and fearing for their safety, innovation and creativity will cease to exist. All of these things are distractions and, just like distracted driving, nothing good will come from it.

MEMORIES OF FARM AND FAMILY

By Donna Boecher

Part 4
Speaking of tasks that remain the same on the farm, there are: milking, egg collection, weeding, and garden preparation – to name just a few. Mother had been one of eight siblings; five girls and three boys. Plus, a niece who was reared with her aunt of a similar age. The families were large enough and born over such a long period of time that this was a possibility. We see grandmothers rearing grandchildren

TODAY when marriages fail. There's an old idiom, "there's nothing new under the sun." So true, and the tasks for these children stay much the same. My mother said she failed cotton-picking and chicken-neck-wringing, so she was relegated to the kitchen while her older sisters got to do outside chores. Maybe she got the better end of the deal after all. Sweeping is easier than diggin' and cooking easier than choppin' wood. My grandfather never had a tractor, so the soil preparation was done by man and mule. I can just imagine my older aunts telling the mule to "gee" (right) and "haw" (left). But it worked; the furrow was plowed, the seeds planted, or the potatoes dug. However, John Deere or Kubota tractors plow today, some with air-conditioned glass cabs for the driver. I laugh; with the price of gasoline and diesel, the farmer may yet go back to geeing and hawing!

Jim Jordan On The Job

Ohio Republican Congressional Representative Jim Jordan spoke at the Destiny Church on Saturday, October 15 in Claremore. Stilwell had at least 6 in attendance. You may have seen Jordan on Tucker

Carlson. Jim was on the job in Claremore-pointing out Josh Brecheen's attributes-letting us know that Josh needs our vote on November 8. Having heard Josh speak at the Stilwell American Legion a couple of weeks ago, I concur. Brecheen is our man in D.C. He has been invited to the MEET & GREET, October 27, at the Stilwell Public Library. See you there!

Mullin It Over:

Applying for a Nomination to a Service Academy

By Congressman Markwayne Mullin

As a Member of Congress, I have the honor of nominating students from the Second District to our country's prestigious service academies. The decision to apply to a service academy is an incredibly personal and courageous one, and I am humbled to be a part of the process.

Nominations are available for the U.S. Military Academy, U.S. Naval Academy, U.S. Air Force Academy, and U.S. Merchant Marine Academy. As these academies prepare the next generation of commissioned officers in the branches of our armed forces, they look for individuals who not only answer the call of duty, but who are also willing to go above and beyond. Students at the academies undergo intense academic work, physical training, and character development to prepare them for military service. In addition to meeting the minimum eligibility requirements, I recommend that each applicant excel academically and demonstrate involvement in extracurricular activities through their schools and in their communities.

The decision to apply for a nomination is not one to take lightly. However, I encourage you to consider if this path is right for you. The honor of attending a service academy comes with an obligation and commitment to serve in the military for a minimum of five years upon graduation. At that time, individuals receive a bachelor's degree and are commissioned as military officers. No matter the branch, rank, or role, each of our men and women in uniform play an important part in maintaining our national security and defending our way of life.

To apply for a nomination from my office or to learn more about the process, please visit www.Mullin.House.Gov/ServiceAcademy. You must complete both the online form and the Academy Application to be considered. From there, you can mail or deliver a printed copy of the application to my McAlester office at 1 E. Choctaw, Suite 175, McAlester, OK 74501. All applications must be received by Friday, November 4, 2022.

After applications are submitted, selected nomination applicants will interview in front of a board of retired military members for final selection. Once the interviews are complete, my office will begin the notification process for applicants.

Receiving a nomination from my office is just the first step in the process of attending a service academy. A nomination does not guarantee admission. If an individual receives a nomination from my office, next, they must receive an appointment from the service academy.

My team and I are here to help in any way we can. If you have questions about the application or the process, please do not hesitate to call my McAlester office at (918) 423-5951. I look forward to hearing from you and wish you the best with the application process.

Choose your leaders with wisdom and forethought.

To be led by a coward is to be controlled by all that the coward fears.

To be led by a fool is to be led by the opportunists who control the fool.

To be led by a thief is to offer up your most precious treasures to be stolen.

To be led by a liar is to ask to be told lies.

To be led by a tyrant is to sell yourself and those you love into slavery.

Commentary by John Bankel

With the November General Election looming just around the corner, it is imperative that the electorate of Adair County is fully informed as to which candidates will best serve our local interests, our state interests and

SPORTS SPOTLIGHT

Commentary by John Bankel

On Thursday, October 13, the Stilwell Indians took a 2 game win streak and a long bus ride to Ada, Oklahoma. The ride back was even longer. The Ada High School Cougars, who are a new addition to Stilwell's District, pounced on the Indians in a decidedly divesting fashion. Ada, who came into the game with a 3-3 record, halted

Stilwell's 2 game winning streak by carving up the Indians 55-0. Stilwell is now at 4-3 on the season and will be hosting another newcomer to District play, the Madill High School Wildcats, who will be taking a long bus ride of their own to play the Indians. Madill comes in with 3-4 record, 1-3 in District play. Fort Gibson is a common opponent whom both schools beat handily: The Indians won 52-33 and Madill won 58-27. Based upon that statistic, this week's game should be a tough tussle. Kickoff is at 7 pm. Come on out and root the Indians to win number 5. Go Indians!

Candidate Profile

Teresa "Tracy Sims"

Teresa Tracy' Sims is the Adair County Assessor, she has 25 years experience at the courthouse in the Assessor's and Treasurer's Offices. The Assessor's Office is responsible for assessing all property for Ad Valorem taxation. 'We prepare and maintain permanent record for all real estate and personal property, including cadastral maps. We are responsible for implementing the four-year visual inspection program for the entire county, receiving and reviewing all applications for exemptions and assisting taxpayers when they have questions. The best part of my job is working with the taxpayers. Even when it's a challenge, it's worth it. When a taxpayer can walk out of the office and know they have had their questions answered and their concerns addressed, then I know I am doing my job. It's important that all taxpayers know I am working for them, not just a select few but for all. Every day, I try to do my job to the best of my ability. I have a great stall and enjoy working with them. We are here to help in any way we can. Our door is always open and you can call me anytime 918-696-2012, Please know that if I don't get to visit with you in person, you vote matters to me and I need you to vote for me. I enjoy my job and want to continue to work for you.

WHAT'S SO PUNNY? Pun Fun

The puns for this week are a classic assortment of rib ticklers. Wanna have fun? Go read a pun!

1. On Track: Why should you never trust a train? They have loco motives!
2. Cold One: What is America's favorite soda? Mini Soda.
3. Time Out: What does a clock do when it is hungry? It goes back for seconds! Natch...

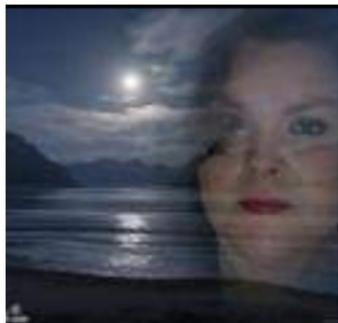

4. Animal Cracker: I'm no cheetah, you're lion.
5. Breakfast Goodie: What did the syrup say to the waffle? I wuv you a waffle lot.

Well folks, now that your ribs are probably sore from laughing so much, it is time to take a break from the punnyzone. So, for now, so long and get ready for more rib ticklers next issue.

Vocabulary word – contemplate – to have in mind as an intention or possibility.

Ex. I can contemplate on how I will spend my allowance, or I can just go to the candy store and spend it quickly.
