ADAIR COUNTY REPUBLICAN PARTY HOSTS DISTRICT 2 CONGRESSIONAL CANDIDATE JOSH BRECHEEN

On Monday, October 3, at Noon, at the Stilwell American Legion Center, the Adair County Republican Party hosted Josh Brecheen, candidate for the District 2 Congressional seat vacated by Markwayne Mullin, when Mullin decided to run for the U.S. Senate seat vacated by the resignation of Jim Inhofe. Brecheen came out on top of the August run-off election versus Avery Frix. Brecheen and Frix ended up 1 and 2 in the primary which had 14 candidates seeking that office. Brecheen ultimately won because he delivered a clear message of what he will accomplish upon his election. He spelled out, in great detail, the foundation of our nation, the U.S. Constitution, and how today that document has been made of little effect by the present, and previous presidents, by virtue of the implementation of executive orders, thus bypassing the legislative branch. Brecheen also spoke extensively about the current debt obligations that the Federal Government is facing. He stated that a child born today assumes a debt of more than $90,000 the second he/she emerges from the womb. Indeed, that figure does not include social security, medicare or medicaid present and future obligations. In total, our nation is in debt to the tune of more than $120 Trillion! Yikes! Brecheen is resolute in reducing this debt by putting policies in place which will do that. In the aggregate, free money is not free. Debts have to be paid sooner or later. America is floating down a turbulent river and facing an economic Niagara falls. With more congressmen like Josh Brecheen, Congress may return to sound fiscal policies before we drown in a debt deluge. The democrats have no answer for this dilemma except to make matters worse by taxing and spending more. After his talk, a lively question and answer session followed with refreshments. Stay tuned in this paper for the date of the next Adair County Republican Party meeting.

Indians Blaze! Torch Tigers!

On Thursday, Oct. 6, a night perfect for football, the 3-2 Stilwell Indians took to the field at James Bradley Memorial field to battle the Ft. Gibson Tigers. For the Indians, the duo of QB Cainan Mink and RB Ethan Richards were too much for the Tigers' defense to contain, as they ran over, under, around and through everything Ft. Gibson put up against them. In a blazing offensive display, the Indians scored a season high 52 points. After the first quarter ended, with the Indians trailing 9-8, Mink and company turned up the heat, scoring twice in the second quarter while holding the Tigers to a field goal to go into the halftime locker room with a 24-12 advantage. The Indians were just warming up. The heat in the second half increased immeasurably, with Mink and Richards turning on their afterburners while leading the team to 28 second half points. The Tigers, on their behalf, tried to put up a fight and did not go quietly into the night, scoring 21 points of their own. Yet, in the end, the Tigers got torched 52-33. Ft. Gibson left the field falling to 0-6 on the year while Stilwell improved their record to 4-2, 1-1 in District play. The Indians will ride a 2 game winstreak on their long ride to Ada to face a tough 3-3 Ada squad Thursday, October 13 in a District game. Kickoff is at 7 pm. Show your support. Take a ride to Ada.

Health Tips from Larkin.....

1. Health tips from Larkin: Bach flowers: Part 9: Chicory: "This is the Bach flower for unconditional love". But beware, in its negative state, the Chicory personality can be the most domineering and demanding of them all. The negative Chicory state produces a need to control, to be the focus of attention, and to be continuously assured of the family's love. These are the children who cry incessantly if left to their own resources, and who use every tool from bribery to flattery, to extreme eagerness to "help," to falling ill in order to achieve the attention they crave. In adults the need for the energy balance achieved from this Bach flower remedy shows up as a kind of possessive, extreme mother love. The negative Chicory personality will try to control and arrange every activity for her family and those in her circle of friends. She's always there to "put things right" when others don't meet her standards of performance. Her pleasure seems to come from commenting, criticizing, and demanding. Her love is conditional: "I'll love you if you..." This is the mother who insists that her children spend every holiday with her - and who makes their lives miserable if they don't comply. She'll use heavy doses of guilt to attain her objectives - making dealing with her an emotional drain on the entire family. In adults, as in children, frequent illness may be used as a way to gain both sympathy and attention. Often, the negative Chicory state is a result of a childhood devoid of love. Thus, the need for affection stems from a lack of fulfillment and a feeling of being unwanted. The feeling of unworthiness prevents this personality from being able to give love to itself so it constantly seeks love from others. As the Remedy begins to work in the Chicory personality, fear of loss will dissipate and the ability to love oneself will grow. Once brought into balance through Bach flower therapies, the Chicory personality has the potential for great inner strength and a strong ability to love unconditionally. In the positive state, the chicory personality becomes the "eternal mother," spreading wings of kindness, warmth, and security - and providing shelter for others selflessly, with no expectation of reward. After Rachael had prayed, she knew God would provide, but she was going to do her part under His guidance. She had gone back to the library and read all the articles on Rachael Anne's death. There were several unusual details. She had fallen down a slope and drowned in the edge of a creek, but her dress had been dry, there had been no scrapes anywhere on the body except a bruised temple next to her left eye. These were the details, according to the medical examiner after doing the autopsy. However, he had not done an examinations of stomach contents. Yet there was something AMISS!

Searching for a Word – inculcate. Instill by persistent instruction.
Ex. The schools could not inculcate the children with faith in God; that was the responsibility of their parents.

Dear John,

I always go to work early. Today was no different. I got about two miles down the road when my car broke down. I had to walk back home and when I got there my heart stopped. My 37-year-old husband was in our bedroom with the neighbors 19-year-old daughter. I'm tore apart and not sure of how to deal with this. Please tell me what to do.

Jolean

Dear Jolean,

let's put first things first. You have to get your car fixed. You did not say what happened when your car broke down. Was there smoke coming out from under the hood? Overheating an engine can blow your head gasket. Did you check the oil lately? An engine can seize-up without oil. Or how about your fuel supply? Did the fuel gauge read "empty"? A car will not run without gas in the tank. Or how about the fuel pump? Was there hesitation before the car quit running? Could it be a computer malfunction, if you have a newer car? My advice to you is to call a towtruck if this ever happens again. As for your husband, you might want to get him "fixed?"

Sincerely,

Dear John

KICK THE CAN

Back in my childhood before the days of video, I can remember children playing a game called kick the can. It was a simple game that could entertain a group of kids and didn't cost anything to play. Sadly, over the past several years our elected leaders have engaged in a game that is far different than what they might have played when they were children. Now the name of the game is kicking the can down the road. What that essentially means is programs will be passed and they won't worry about paying for it, the cost will simply be passed on to someone in the future to pay. Here in this country our politicians have played that game, but it is not unique to just our country. Simply put, there is simply way too much money floating around. Our politicians borrowed and spent trillions of dollars that we did not have over the past few years, and the Federal Reserve pumped trillions of dollars that it created out of thin air into the financial system.

Inflation is a monster that is chewing up economies across the world. In Europe, the nation of Germany has been an economic powerhouse, but inflation is quickly destroying their economy. German producer prices rose in August at the fastest rate since records began in 1949. The Achilles heel of the German economy is their reliance on Russia natural gas; because of that reliance and the Russians cutting off their supply, the Germans are experiencing inflation not seen since the Weimar Republic. Producer prices of industrial products rose by 45.8 percent compared to the same month of last year. Compared to July 2022, prices rose 7.9 percent. With monthly increases of around 8 percent, next year at this time we could be talking about a yearly jump of close to 100 percent.

Here in America, we are in better shape than our counterparts in Germany, but if some common sense is not restored to Washington DC we will be in the same boat. In America we have the ability to be energy self-sufficient, whereas Germany does not have the energy reserves to tap. Also, in our country, our current administration is going down a foolish path towards the so-called green energy deal which is not technologically feasible at this time. I recently read where the state of California passed legislation that would prohibit the use of natural gas in home furnaces and water heaters; being in the HVAC business, I know that natural gas is a time proven and economical way to heat our homes. For any economy to thrive it is essential to have an abundant and affordable source of energy. There are trends in our country that cannot be ignored. Many Americans are also starting to kick the can down the road by turning to credit cards and high interest short-term loans just to pay for essentials such as food; card debt held by U.S. households surged by 13% on an annualized basis in the second quarter, representing the sharpest climb in over 20 years. If our government continues the practice of kicking the can down the road with more government spending and pursuing energy policies that are not feasible at this time, we will be following that can right over a cliff.

Mullin It Over:

Improving Health Outcomes in Rural Oklahoma

By Congressman Markwayne Mullin

Rural Oklahomans face a set of unique challenges accessing quality health care. I've introduced a few bills over the past week to address these needs and improve health outcomes in the Second District.

To combat the opioid epidemic that is ravaging our communities, I've introduced the E-Prescribing Parity for Controlled Substances Act to expand the use of electronic prescriptions and create more stringent barriers to accessing Schedule II drugs. According to the Department of Justice, most fraudulent prescription opiates are obtained through doctor shopping, forged prescriptions, or theft. Widespread adoption of electronic prescriptions would dramatically reduce the occurrence of doctor shopping and prescription pad theft. Fentanyl is flowing through our southern border, worsening the opioid epidemic, and contributing to record-high overdose deaths. This bill can protect those vulnerable to or currently struggling with opioid addiction when they are in a medical setting seeking care.

I've also introduced legislation to reauthorize a key grant program that supports state health facilities across the country and improves rural health care. The State Offices of Rural Health were created to help deliver affordable, accessible health care to the undeserved communities of our country. Since their establishment, they have played an integral role in improving the health of rural America. The Oklahoma State University's Office of Rural Health was established in 1991 and continues to work with local communities to help ensure their health care infrastructure is economically viable. My bill will reauthorize State Offices of Rural Health like this one and ensure that these offices have the financial resources they need to improve information-sharing, technical assistance, and care delivery in rural health settings.

Finally, as many of you know, our emergency medical services (EMS) providers are often the difference between life and death in rural Oklahoma. Unfortunately, there is a 30 percent turnover rate of full and part-time EMTs and paramedics across the country that can be attributed to pressures from the pandemic along with low pay and poor benefits. These staffing shortages, combined with skyrocketing costs to purchase equipment and fuel, are forcing EMS agencies to make difficult decisions, including whether to reduce or even cease operations. My bill, the Supporting Our First Responders Act, will create a new grant program under the Department of Health and Human Services (HHS) to help EMS agencies with hiring and retaining qualified staff, training reimbursements, facility upgrades, and more. This program will provide a federal funding stream so our EMS providers can remain fully operational in rural America.

I urge Speaker Pelosi to bring these three pieces of legislation to the House floor. Oklahomans deserve access to quality health care, and we must ensure our rural communities are not left behind.

MEMORIES OF FARM AND FAMILY

By Donna Boecher

Thinking about "the devil's eyebrow" reminds me of other times in Pa Dick's '43 Ford Pickup – riding in the "truck bed." Today it's considered dangerous; however, those rides are still taken on the dirt back-roads of Adair County. Fifty plus years ago, most pickups only held two or three people in the cab. So, family-visiting-family on a Sunday afternoon filled the truck bed with family members unable to ride in the cab. I, especially, remember sitting in a cane-back chair; comfortable, but doubly dangerous. There were several trips to Greasy to visit family on Maxwell Mountain. Most were taken with a view to the north as we traveled south. There were exceptions; Pa Dick and I would go to the little grocery store that was located on Frontage Road behind what is now the Catholic

Today's Trail Treks To The... Freedom or Socialism

Commentary by John Bankel

This is the second in a series of 5 articles comparing the Republican Platform with that of the Democrat's. In anticipation of the November General Election, it is imperative to know the difference between what the two mainstream political parties stand for. Sometimes the essential stuff gets lost in all the political maneuvering, what with the democrats so adept at manufacturing distractions. Knowing the nuts and bolts will always serve you, the voter, in making the best decision for yourself, your family and America. The comparison below will appear in this column in all the following issues of The Straight Forward FREE Press until the election. As a side note, I just learned that Tulsi Gabbard, former District 2 Hawaii Congresswoman, has left the Democrat party behind because, in her estimation, the party is "too woke" and has become an "elitist cabal." Strongly worded yet, in my opinion, an accurate description. It is my hope that I have served you, the reader, well herewith.

POINT OF VIEW

Hello everyone, my name is Tarra Boecher. I'm married to your District 1 County Commissioner candidate, Charles Boecher. I have a few things I'd like to say, my hope is you'll find it interesting enough to read through until the end. I went into this campaign not knowing what to expect, the only thing I knew for certain was the ball was rolling. If I'm being 100% honest, I was a bit put off initially when Charles first decided to put his name on the ballot, for selfish reasons because winning this would mean our time together would be less, as I'd have to share him with all of Adair County. I started talking to God about it, and the deeper we dove into campaigning, the clearer it became that the gifts Charles has to offer Adair County would prove to be invaluable in time. My husband is a natural born leader, and his career in the military solidified that. He's a steward of this land, and he's an avid student of life. He has an innate desire to never stop learning, and to never stop serving. We need to vote in leaders that can control their emotions. Leaders that are slow to anger, yet strong as steel, and ready to listen to the faintest of sounds. A human calculator of sorts. To calculate numbers, calculate the build of our county, while also calculating the well-being of our community. If you've ever been intrigued by the word integrity, I can assure you, Charles holds all its components. I firmly believe our country needs more men like Charles elected into positions of authority. Men that hold within, a true sense of integrity. An integrity that's DNA written, life hurdle endured, and perseverance ingrained. For it takes those components together to create a humble servant. A servant for the people, that is solid as gold. I've always believed "It takes a community." That's proving to be truer now than ever before. It would be an honor to have your support at the polls, November 8th. I'd like to thank you for lending me your listening ear, and remind you, we are in this together.
